THE AMERICAN TELEGRAPH. - We were told by very many persons that it would be impossible to sustain another daily paper in Washing ton, and "a litt's month" was the longest period allowed us in their predictions. But we are in the third menth of life, and presume our the feebleness of a premature old age. We are strong, hopeful, and very willing to labor on.

We have met with few disappointments. We did not at the beginning promise ourselves a larger city circulation at this stage; nor did we hope for a larger share of the advertising patronage of the city. We however did believe, that the existence of a local newspaper would lead to a greater increase of the adver- to C. H. Van Patten; part of lot 2, in square tisements of our business men.

In the mean time, let us submit to such of our fellow-citizens as have not hitherto given us their aid, whether there are no considerations which should impel them to it? We plead no need, and ask no gratuity; but, in making the promise to stand by the interests of our community, we think it not amiss to remind them that this is a thing in which mutual benefits can and should be conferred.

We learn that THOMAS U. WALTER, esq., architect, of Philadelphia, was yesterday appointed by the President to superintend the enlargement of the Capitol, under the direction of the President. The definite plan upon which this enlargement, or extension, is to be effected, we believe, has not yet been announced.

PERHOUS POSITION .- Joseph Seigfried, who has contracted to paint the spire of the Presbyterian church on Main street, in Chilicothe, ascended a few days since to within some six feet of the top, by ingeniously attaching a block and tackle to a hook, and fastening the lower end to a large basket. He took passage for the upper regions in that frail bark, and reached an elevation of one hundred and fifty-two feet from the ground. Having been drawn up as high as the apparatus would admit, and wishing to fasten a wire to the topmost spire, he block, holding with one hand to some projecting pieces of tin, while he arranged the wire with used to on the avenue. the other. While in this perilous position he felt himself growing faint and his grasp relaxing. He immediately slipped down into his basket, where he lay, nearly exhausted, some ten minutes, with his head projecting over one side of the receptacle, and his feet over the op-

THE VALUE OF A GOOD NAME. - The Detroit Advertiser states that a gentleman who is largely engaged in manufacturing flour in the interior of New York, and who has been so fortunate as to establish for his mill a high reputation among favorite brands, unable to make as much of the article as he can sell, has been engaged for some months past, and is now engaged in this some months past, and is now engaged in this esting state of feeling has existed in our State in buying up certain brands of Michigan churches. We can safely estimate the number flour, for the purpose of taking it to New York of conversions at not less than seven hundred and there repacking it into new barrels, upon and fifty. I presume there have been more. which he places his own well-known brand ; for which flour, when so put up, he realizes from four to six shillings more per barrel than the very choicest kinds of Michigan flour, in the best order, will command under the most favorable circumstances.

THE ALLEGED DEFALCATION IN BALTIMORE. The Sun of this morning says:

"It will be seen by reference to the cards o Col. H. S. Sanderson, late city collector, and of Mr. P. A. Egerton, his chief clerk, that they deny all knowledge of any errors in their accounts; and the former declares his determination to dedicate every dollar he possesses, of which it is believed he has ample, to protect a character for integrity which has hitherto been above suspicion. Mr. Egerton also denies all false entries, and, challenging investigation, asserts that all that has been done was done in good faith. Col. Sanderson also asserts his en-tire confidence in the integrity of Mr. Egerton, and that a few days will decide that he is entirely free from such censure.'

The character of Sanderson and Egerton authorizes the belief that an error in figures has been committed by some one, and not a fraud by either of them.

A DESPERATE RESOLVE. - The Lockport Daily Courier says: "There is a legend that a mer- a farmer's daughter. chant once determined to ruin himself by squan dering his money in advertising; but he found the more he advertised the richer he grew, that the more he advertised to give up in despair of ever effecting his purpose in that way."

An Arrest .- R. In the recent elections, the "more and Mr. R. resumed his argument. decay. Kosciusko Case in Chancery .- Weremarked

It was our desire to procure from both sides these facilities; but as the counsel for the de-

Mr. Redin spoke yesterday until three o'clock. p. m., when the court adjourned. This morning sion commenced yesterday. There is a tie in the court met at nine o'clock, to dispose of some other pressing legal business. At half-past must appoint a day for another election in that ten o'clock it proceeded in the Kosciusko case,

Yesterday Mr. R. said that his clients were James Carrico and Samuel Stott, sureties upon the administration bond in the penalty of $20,000. The deed of trust by which Bomford gave his property to J. B. H. Smith, in trust, to secure from losses himself, Jacob Gideon, and Ulysses Ward, sureties to the $20,000 bond, does not secure Stott and Carrico. They stand upon different ground from other sureties, be ing wholly unprotected by the deed of trust referred to by the counsel who opened the case for the persons claiming to be the next of kin of Kosciusko. Mr. R. then argued that there is no proof that the complainants are the next of kin of General Kosciusko; nor is there any proof that Kosciusko died without issue. The paper produced in evidence as decree of their pedigree has not been established to be such It is in the Russian language; its translation brought from the Orphans' Court, cannot be received in evidence in this case; and the witnesses examined under the commission testified its authenticity, not upon the faith of the original, but upon the faith of that translation. One of the witnesses examined under the commission said so, plainly—and the other was not examined by the commissioners: whether he under stands the language in which the original paper is written, and what he said in this respect in the Orphans' Court, is no evidence in this case. It was urged further, that the seals and signatures in that document have not been provedand that neither Stott and Carrico, nor any other surety, were made parties to the proceedings upon which that decree was obtained. The same objection was urged as to the other paper purporting to be a decree of the Court of Koboyn, in Russia, which was produced to establish the right or title of the complainants to Kosciusko's property in the United States. Mr. Redin then maintained that the evidence produced by the counsel of the complainants does not establish the fact that Kosciusko's domicil, at the time of his death, was in France; he maintained that it continued in the birth-place of Kosciusko, in Poland, until his death, or if it was not there it was in Switzerland-but no evidence to prove it has as yet been offered. It urged that the will of 1798, disposing of the property on behalf of the negroes, stands in full force; and that the will of 1816 has not been so proved as to bind the property being here-the original of that will has never been produced and proved here, and the authenticated copy recorded in the Orphans' Court cannot have such effect as the counsel who opened the case (Major Tochman) insisted upon. But should the court be of a different opinion, Mr. Redin said that the complainants produced a will which Kosciusko executed in 1817, and by that will it was urged he disposed of his property wherever it may be found to Mr. and Mrs. sureties of Bomford, it was urged th not liable : 1st. Because Lear, the first administrator of Kosciusko's estate, sold the original assets, and invested the proceeds in his name, which brought them within the scope of assets "ad-The elephant, lately on a visit to this city, ministered." And it was maintained that Bomford could not, and had no right to possess himself of such assets in the capacity of the administrator de bonis non; and if he did so, his sureties upon the administration bond of Lear's estate, and not they who are his sureties upon the administration bond of Kosciusko's estate, are liable for the waste committed by him.

2d. It was maintained and urged that Bomford's sureties at bar are not liable for the assets which Bomford collected and wasted before they entered into bond as security for him.

3d. It was maintained and urged that the suraties to the original administration bond of Bomford, and the sureties upon Lear's administration bond, should have been made parties.

4th. Mr. Redin said that devastavit was committed by Bomford in 1845; the law authorizing the Orphans' Court to require additional or further bonds from the administrators, was passed in February, 1846; and his clients became sureties for Bomford in May, 1846. These facts being established, by reference to the pleadings, Mr. Redin argued that the law of February, 1846, is retrospective-devastavit having been committed before the law was passed; and upon this ground he urged that his clients are not liable for the waste committed by Bomford before the date of the law of February, 1846. He is arguing this proposition as our paper goes to press. Note. - In our yesterday's paper occurred mistakes. Where we spoke of the bond in the penalty of $60,000, it should be $40,000; and the order was prayed for that the defendants bring into court $43,504 40-not $63,504 40. as we stated.
